EDITORIAL

The Ontario Numismatic Association has now marked its first anniversary, and has held its first annual convention. The response to the convention by numismatists throughout Ontario and neighbouring areas was most gratifying to the Executive. Judging by the comments contained in various numismatic publications, the convention was a marked success.

In order for a convention to be a success it must satisfy its guests in various ways. Some attend conventions to buy, sell and trade coins; others come to view the displays; still others come to learn more about their coins and hobby from seasoned numismatists. Through the varied programme presented at the convention, the O. N. A. endeavoured to reach all of these people.

A successful convention is the result of hard work and expert guidance. The O. N. A. was very fortunate in having the St. Catharines Coin Club as the host club with the energetic leadership of its president, Bob Prince. The O. N. A. is fully aware of the tremendous effort put forth by the St. Catharines Club, and extends to the club its most sincere thanks for an expertly conducted convention which, by all standards, was an unqualified success in all phases of its activities.

Looking back over the past year of our organization, we observe that membership has increased, not as rapidly as anticipated, but still steadily growing. We also note that a number of topics has been added to the Speakers' Circuit and a number of additional speakers has volunteered their services.

Also, during our first year we have launched the Audio-visual feature of our education programme, and I understand that there has been a great interest in this service and that the topics have been received with enthusiasm.

Since our Founding Convention we have designed the obverse of our medal and selected the Association motto. We have struck our first medal portraying our Association crest on the obverse with the attractive Totem emblem of the St. Catharines Coin Club on the reverse.

Also, in our first year we have designed and produced one hundred display cases which relieves an acute shortage of adequate display facilities. At the present time the Association is having designed a suitable carrying case for handling and shipping the display cases.

Looking to the future now that the Treasury has some money, the Executive is considering a change in the style and format of our official publication. Consideration is also being given to issuing our publication on a monthly basis. In the not too distant future, the Executive hopes to publish a "Club Service Directory" which it is hoped will contain useful information for clubs from the management of meetings to the judging of displays. This will be quite a comprehensive publication, and will take some time to prepare.

As you see, a lot has been accomplished in the past year, and we look forward to accomplishing a lot more in the future.

The O. N. A. would not have advanced as it has if it were not for the dedicated people who administer its affairs. A spirit of co-operation has prevailed at all the Executive meetings, and it has been the goal of the members of the Executive to build an organization in Ontario worthy of Ontario numismatics, and as President, I have found it most rewarding to work in association with the members of the Executive. The O. N. A. is indeed fortunate to have in its founding Executive, able administrators and keen numismatists.

Rod R. Rekofski,
President.

APPOINTMENT OF NEW EDITOR

The Executive is pleased to announce the appointment of Mrs. Claudia Pelkey to the position of Editor of the Ontario Numismatist. Mrs. Pelkey brings to her position a wide experience in the editorial field, and Mrs. Pelkey's duties begin with the publication of the August issue. Our new editor is presently studying ways in which we can improve our publication, and we look forward to hearing her suggestions in the near future.

The Executive accepted with considerable regret the resignation of David Ash who served as our Editor during the first year of publication. The first year was an important year for our organization, and Mr. Ash gave to our publication a wealth of numismatic knowledge. Pressure of increased responsibilities of Mr. Ash's profession forced our Editor to relinquish his position, and the standard set by David Ash in his publications could rarely be expected from an organization as young as the O. N. A.

COIN COLLECTING - - A BUSINESS OR HOBBY?

Text of talk presented to the St. Thomas Coin Club on June 12, by Lloyd T. Smith, London.

The nature of our hobby is such that we are almost immediately involved in commercial or trade transactions with other collectors. We seldom find a serious collector who has not found it necessary to buy, sell or trade duplicates at some time. It is therefore, a foregone conclusion that to many of us, coin collecting becomes a marriage of business and hobby.

Our concern this evening is with the amount of pleasure that may be derived from coin collecting as a hobby and how much business may be combined with collecting without destroying the fun and pleasure.

Before we delve into the various areas of thought on the question of business or hobby, let me assure everyone that it is not my intention to discount the position of the dealer or part-time dealer, as I do recognize the good he has done, and is doing for the hobby, but I will attempt relative comparisons between the dealer as such and the collector whose aim is to become a numismatist.

If you are a newcomer to coin collecting, there are probably some points of confusion in your mind concerning certain aspects of the hobby. Let us pose some of these as questions and the possible answers.

The first and a very common question could be "Why can't I sell my duplicates at the prices listed in catalogues?" This question serves to point out one of the main characteristics of many newcomers. He has heard stories or read items in the newspapers of the rapidly rising values for certain coins and has decided to get on the bandwagon. Catalogues and price lists are readily available to all and a quick glance through one indicated that every coin in his pocket has at least some value over face. So, he hoards coins indiscriminately, having little regard for rarity and even less knowledge of condition. During this period of hoarding, he will usually attempt to complete a series of coins in the Whitman folders. When he reaches that point in his collection that he requires only the "key" or scarce coins to complete a particular series, he will learn that these may be purchased at a coin club meeting, and here comes his sad discovery. The dealers and collectors are asking catalogue prices for the items he needs, but no one is interested in buying or trading for his common hoard.

We answer his question by informing him that dealers must charge a percentage on even the common coins as he has overhead to consider, and even the cataloguer must list the common material at a price to allow a profit as he may also be a dealer or must consider those that are. Generally, the dealer can maintain his supply on hand to take care of future requirements and to supply collectors in areas where these coins are not so common.

If the new collector wishes to make a small profit on the common material, he may take it to an area where it is not so common, or may advertise in coin publications. Both methods may easily cost much more than the profit obtained.

Another question is "Why do some dealers and collectors grade coins differently from others?" Here, the human element is involved. Education in proper coin grading is a very important phase of collecting, both from the standpoint of buying and selling and even insuring a collection.

Unfortunately, and often to the detriment of numismatics, there are a few unscrupulous people in our hobby, some of whom prey upon the novice. The best way to combat this is to have a good knowledge of grading standards, stick rigidly to these standards when buying, selling or trading and do not encourage such unethical practises in any way. There is a natural tendency to try to upgrade scarce or rare items to gain a greater profit, but if you do not agree with the grading, do not buy the piece unless the seller will regrade it or will offer it at a price more consistent with your own estimation of the grade and value.

The next question is "Why do coins usually sell for less in an auction than on the dealer's table?" This is a very good question and I have often wondered why collectors will let a coin go by in an auction, only to buy it later at a higher price. Yes, the dealer may even have bought that very coin from your own club auction. Many people are under the impression that an auction means only cut-rate bargains. There are good buys in auctions, but the main purpose of a coin auction is to assist collectors to dispose of their duplicates and in the completion of their sets. As always, the question of supply and demand will determine the value and selling price for each lot, but collectors must keep in mind that auctions and the material submitted can be improved only through fair returns.

As we are dealing with the question of "Business or Hobby", we could ask "Is there room for more dealers?" In any business, the very small or occasional dealer is of little concern to the professional or full-time dealer. This is especially true in coin collecting, where almost everyone deals a little, but only a few make of it an occupation.

Very few collectors can afford the cost of an extensive stock of numismatic material; nor do they have sufficient knowledge of sources of supply, material, advertising, travelling and bourse table costs and most important, trend speculation. A smart person will study stock market speculation very carefully before investing, an example that could be most important for future coin dealers.

Consider too, that a successful dealer often works long and odd hours, leaving little time to devote to collecting, numismatic study, or to enjoy the other activities when attending shows.

Now, let us compare this with the latter half of our title, "Hobby". Rightfully chosen, a hobby is an enjoyable plan or pursuit outside of our work or business. To derive the greatest pleasure in the pursuit of any hobby, we should plan to keep it within the bounds of our finances, time and knowledge, yet ever developing this knowledge through research, thus extending the limits of those bounds.

Early planning will avoid the frustration experienced by some collectors when they can no longer afford the remaining rare specimens required to complete a certain series. We should first consider the many and varied fields of numismatic interest. It is not at all necessary to collect any coins by series or dates; a type set of coins of any country or era will represent the whole series, leaving much more time and money for research or other fields of interest.

Time spent on research will add much to the enjoyment of numismatics, will enable the collector to prepare more interesting displays and will raise him from the hole filler class to numismatist.

Having discussed these few questions and answers relating to coin collecting, I would conclude that it is seldom possible for an individual to successfully combine business and hobby as one; so, if pleasure and enjoyment are the prime reasons for entering the field of numismatics, choose the latter.

Finally, I would remind every collector of the advantages of belonging to the provincial organization, The Ontario Numismatic Association, and the Canadian Numismatic Association. The Ontario Numismatic Association offers a bulletin, the Speakers' Circuit, Audio-visual presentations, a library and other services. The Canadian Numismatic Association has a fine library and a very good monthly journal.

By offering your services locally and with these larger organizations, you will gain so much more enjoyment in collecting as a hobby that you will have little time or interest in it as a business.

Coin collecting is the largest and fastest growing hobby in North America, and though we cannot and must not alter this union of business and hobby, we can each determine the necessary balance of the two to obtain our goal.

AWARD OF MERIT

One of the highlights of the First Annual Convention was the presentation of the Award of Merit to Dr. John S. Wilkinson. Mr. Walter Griggs, chairman of the Award committee, made the presentation to Dr. Wilkinson. The congratulations of the O. N. A. are extended to Dr. Wilkinson for being selected for this high honour.

This award is made annually if there are qualified recipients to outstanding Ontario numismatists and was first presented to Mr. R. C. Willey at the Founding Convention last year.

1963 SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING

The O. N. A. is pleased to announce that it has accepted the invitation of the London Numismatic Society to hold the Semi-Annual Meeting at London, Ontario, on Saturday, September 21, 1963. The meeting will be held in conjunction with the London Numismatic Society Annual Banquet and Auction, at the Westown Plaza, Oxford Street West, London, Ontario.

Further details of this meeting will be published in the August issue of the Ontario Numismatist.

FIRST ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

One purpose of a general meeting is to offer members an opportunity to present their views personally to the Executive and before the other members. In this way, new ideas can be injected into an organization which may not normally find their way to the Executive.

At our own general meeting at Frudhomme's the Executive was impressed with the helpful suggestions and ideas which were presented for study. The Executive was further impressed with the interest which was shown by the members in the organization and their sincerity in helping to create an organization which will be of benefit to numismatics in Ontario.

During an exchange of ideas it was suggested that some attempt be made to obtain a closer liaison between the Executive and member clubs. Various ways were suggested in which liaison might be obtained and the Executive was requested to give this matter an early study.

A further suggestion was made that the Executive give consideration to increase the annual dues in order that further services may be provided by the O. N. A. and that some of the duties of the Editor may be performed by a stenographic service. The Executive appreciates that considerable work is involved in publishing the Ontario Numismatist and will give this suggestion further study.

The Executive was requested to give consideration to publishing the Ontario Numismatist on a monthly basis. This, of course, depends on the amount of material submitted for publication, the expense involved and the time at the disposal of the Editor to prepare for publication. However, the Executive will consider this suggestion and as previously mentioned our new Editor is making a study of a change in style and format of our publication, and will also include her ideas about publishing monthly.

Mr. Frank Uttley suggested that the O. N. A. approach the National Film Board to enquire into the possibilities of producing a series of numismatic films on Canadian coinage. Approaches will be made to the Film Board in this regard.

Only a few of the suggestions put forward by our members were discussed here. However, our secretary has a record of the meeting, and each suggestion will be discussed at future Executive meetings.

1963 CONVENTION MEDAL

In commemoration of the First Annual Convention of the Ontario Numismatic Association, the Association is pleased to announce the striking of a distinguished medal highly representative of the medallist's art. This medal is the first of a series honouring annual conventions of the Association. The St. Catharines Coin Club, host for the first convention, has joined with the Association in creating a very beautiful medal as a fitting tribute of the occasion.

The obverse design of the medal bears the insignia of the Association which portrays the cross of St. George on a shield surmounted by a Tudor Crown. The trillium, provincial flower of Ontario, is also found on the shield.

On a scroll beneath the shield is the motto of the Association in Latin which reads: "Vires Acquirit Eundo". Translated this means: "As it grows, it gathers strength."

The obverse design was suggested by the Founding Convention Committee, and was incorporated in the Founding Convention Medal of the Association which was struck by the Waterloo Coin Society, in 1962.

Modifications were made to the original design by the Association executive, which included the replacement of the original crown by the Tudor crown and the addition of the Association motto.

The reverse design of the medals portrays in articulate beauty, the well-known totem pole which is the emblem of the St. Catharines Coin Club. Completing the reverse of the medal is the name of the host club, the date of the Convention, and the founding year of the host club.

The dies were cut and the medals were struck by Elliot-Bishop Limited, Toronto, Ontario. The excellent workmanship of Elliot-Bishop resulted in a sharp and outstanding medal.

The medal is 29 mm's in diameter, the size of a Canadian Fifty-cent piece. The medal is 2mm's. thick at the rim which has a smooth edge. The depth of the striking brings the centre portion of the design slightly higher than the edge.

A limited issue of 10K. solid gold and 10K. gold-filled were struck. Strikings were also in sterling silver and bronze. All medals have an antique finish.

In the years to come, these medals will be a cherished item in a numismatic collection.

TOTEM POLE LEGEND

The St. Catharines Coin Club emblem - the Totem Pole - is a familiar landmark in St. Catharines, and many have seen it on the south side of the Queen Elizabeth Way, directly in front of the Davis Lumber Company Limited.

This landmark is the largest Thunderbird Totem Pole east of British Columbia. It was carved from a British Columbia Cedar, and is 34 inches across the butt, 30 feet high, and its Thunderbird has a wing spread of 16 feet.

Chief Mathias Joe of the Capilano Indian Tribe took three months to carve the huge pole, and he was assisted by his son George.

When asked what the various carvings on the totem pole represented, Chief Mathias Joe said that the Thunderbird is the Creator of the world. Next to the Creator, descending the pole, are fire, atmosphere, land, people, sickness, and death.

On the right wing is the sun, the sky, the clouds, the rain, the hail storm, and the wind. On the left wing is the moon, the stars, the night clouds, and the night that makes the world go to sleep.

On the right leg of the Thunderbird is the eye of the sea monster who is the father and mother of all the fish that come from the sea. On the other leg is the eye of the land monster who is the father and mother of all the animals and birds on land.

On one side of the tail are the high and the low water marks. On the other side are the lakes and rivers that come down from the hills forever. The Creator of the world has the Thunderbird to look after the world. It washes the face of the earth, so that the grass and berries will come out again, and it washes the beds of the creeks, rivers, and the sea, so our fish will come back again to spawn.

When the Thunderbird is thundering in the spring, the people thank the Creator that the world will have a good summer again. Thunder and lightning, wind, and rain shake the old dust off the trees, so that the leaves will come out again, and the birds will build their nests in the trees.

In the early days, the Thunderbird killed people with its lightning, and he still kills people today whom he doesn't want in the world, according to Chief Mathias Joe.
